

Call or click before you dig in your yard

This spring, whether you're gardening, planting a tree or installing a fence, dig safely. Contact BC One Call first to get natural gas line location details and then hand dig to expose the line. It's free and could help you avoid costly repairs.

Three easy steps

- 1 Call or click: Call BC One Call at 1-800-474-6886 or *6886 or click on bconecall.ca.
- 2 Review: Within about two business days, you'll receive natural gas line location information. Review it before digging.
- 3 Clarify: Need help understanding where it's safe to dig? Call FortisBC at 1-888-822-6555.

Learn more and watch our video at fortisbc.com/yardwork.

Hand dig next

After you receive natural gas line location information:

1. Use the information to mark the location of buried lines.
2. Carefully hand dig to expose the lines—do not use power equipment within one metre of the gas line.
3. Proceed with your project, avoiding the line.

If you damage a natural gas line, or smell or hear leaking gas:

- Call FortisBC immediately at 1-800-663-9911.
- Remove all sources of ignition, including lit cigarettes, cell phones, power tools and equipment.
- Keep your distance from the gas line. Never try to bury it or repair it yourself.

FortisBC may seek to recover all associated costs from the damages made to a gas line.

FortisBC Energy Inc. does business as FortisBC. The company is an indirect, wholly owned subsidiary of Fortis Inc. FortisBC uses the FortisBC name and logo under license from Fortis Inc.